

I am glad to see that you are investigating the events at the super bowl half-time show. I hope that you will instigate a hefty fine on those responsible. Though many involved claim that the instance was accidental it seems unlikely that those who participated first-hand had no knowledge of what was to happen. And it also seems unlikely that those who sponsored the production did not know what was to transpire on the field. Justin Timberlake claims that there was a "costume malfunction" however it seemed that the costume of Jannet Jackson did exactly what it was designed to do.
